

CivxNow

A PROJECT OF ICIVICS

Many of our CivxNow partners are working overtime to empower teachers to make the most of this election as a teachable moment. Check out some of their resources below!

Organization	Resources
Alliance for Decision Education	There is no bigger decision day than Election Day, and that's why the Alliance for Decision Education has centralized several resources that intersect Election Day and decision education, including cognitive bias awareness activities, a weight and rate chart, and data literacy tools.
Center for Civic Education	The Center for Civic Education has created lesson plans, 60-second videos, and a guide to federalism and election laws. Check out all their great resources!
Edward M. Kennedy Institute	EMK has several resources related to Election Day for all ages, including a Campaign Poster for elementary-aged youth, an art project for middle school students, and an electoral college simulation for middle and high school students.
Facing History and Ourselves	Facing History and Ourselves has led online workshops for teachers on Election Day, centralized their teaching resources on elections, and created a mini-lesson for this year's election,
Generation Citizen	Generation Citizen has created a Rise Vote 2024 resource that includes tips and strategies for registering, informing, supporting, and empowering youth voices during the election.
Generation Nation	Generation Nation has created resources for North Carolina teachers. Check out their student election resources for the Charlotte-Mecklenburg region here.
Gilder Lehrman Institute	The Gilder Lehrman Institute includes a variety of essays, primary sources, and online exhibitions teachers can use to celebrate Election Day with their students.
iCivics	iCivics has centralized all of the organization's election resources at their new Election Headquarters . Check out related games, lesson plans, videos, infographics, and much more at the site!
Massachusetts Civic Learning Coalition	Many CivxNow state-based coalitions are leaning into Election Day with resources for teachers. Among those states, one of those leaders is the MA Civics Coalition. Check out resources and professional learning opportunities from leading MA-based providers including CIRCLE, the MA Center for Civic Education, the Democratic Knowledge Project, iCivics, Generation Citizen, the Edward M. Kennedy Institute, and more.
PBS Learning Media	PBS Learning Media has created an Election Central with resources including Democracy 101, News and Current Issues, and classroom materials.
RetroReport	RetroReport has created several short videos teachers can use to help teach about the election and created a lesson called Politicking: A 19th Century Campaign Series, where students travel back in time and compare past elections and what they meant to the evolution of the nation's democracy.
Sphere Education	Sphere has created an Election Hub with classroom content, professional development videos, and events.
